Just a Week Before the Regiment Leaves for Wrightsville.

HOW THE BOYS WILL PASS THE TIME.

An Interesting Communication Giving Full Details of the Place-Colonel Jones Gives a Good Account of the Trip.

N SUNDAY NEXT the First Virginia regiment will be at Wrightsville.

Just one week full of the most pleasurable antici-pations before the soldier boys will have their cheeks kissed by ocean breezes and their faces tanned by the faces tanned light July sun. It is just week before her enter their tents, and begins seven days' feast to mind and body. Wrightsville is a charming place. It is only wrightsville is a charming place. It is only in the last few weeks that the regiment's soldiers have found this out. They are rejoiced to find that statements made of the place is true, and every piece of information is eagerly into and every piece of information is eagerly listened to by the men who anticipate the pleasures of the trip.

The Times has the pleasure to-day of presenting an excellent map of the resort and the following from the pen of a North Carolina correspondent who visted Wrightsville dition. Just beyond the camp-grounds and fronting on the sound is the residence of Mr. Pembroke Jones, very handsome and picturesque in its appearance. At the southern extremity of the camp-ground is the Poisson cottage. This is a most unique building and is just finished. The owner will occupy it in a few days. It is built entirely of native woods the interior finish and appartments being very elegant and attractive.

ON THE MAINLAND.

Wrightsville proper is on the mainland. Just east and in front of the village is Wrightsville sound, in the centre of which is the Island Beach. On this is situated the Island Beach Hotel, which has a capacity to accommodate about four hundred guests. Quite a large dancing pavilion and a theatre are also located on this island.

The ocean's beach is a quarter of a mile further to the east, and is a strip of land varying in width from fifty to one hundred yards, and extends for about five miles. This beach is called Ocean View, is traversed over the large portion of its length by the Sea Coast Railroad, which crossed the sound from he mainland. On the beach is located the J. P. C. club house, the Carolina Yacht Club, some eight or ten cottages owned by private persons, the Kest of the Silver Cross, dancing pavillon, restaurants, and, last but not least, the switchback, with which Richmond people became acquainted during the Exposition.

HALF-HOUR TRAINS.

Trains run from the mainland cross the Sound and along the beach every half hour during summer season, and the scene presented during the warm evenings reminds one very much of Coney Island. On the Fourth of only last it is estimated that there were 5,000 people in bathing at the same time on this beautiful beach.

ways a welcome, however, for a newspaper we met Colonel Fred A. Olds, Quartermaster General and chief of ordinance. He was busily engaged in pitching the tents for the use of the North Carolina brigade.

"We found Captain Olds a most courteous and obliging officer, thoroughly posted in all of the details pertaining to the special work which he had in charge. He had already in place the kitchens for the use of the First regiment, supplied with stoves and cooking utensits, and the floors for the tents were also on the grounds. We found also that Captain E. W. Manning had been appointed brigade sutler, and contract had been made with him to furnish all supplies for the commissary service at prices which were in every way satisfactory. In fact, we found every arrangement had been made which was necessary, so that we can go right into camp, give the necessary orders and our wants will be supplied. supplied.

We spent the night at Wilmington, took the morning train for Wrightsville, a mile distant, where "In the afternoon Colonel Jones took us under his care and showed us all of the surrounding places, such as the Island Beach or Hammocks, which is immediately in front of Wrightsville and about half way across the Sound. On the Island's quite a large hotel, a theatre, dancing pavilion and beautiful grounds for the accommodation of visitors.

Just beyond the Hammocks is a strip of land on which are many cottages, club-houses of the Carolina Yacht Club, pavilions and restaurants. This is called Ocean View, and a grand view of the ocean it is. A magnificent surf was running all day. There is every accommodation for pleasure and comfort.

SHOCKOE HILL CEMETERY.

The Cause of the Bad Condition of the Old Burying Ground.

Superintendent Richard W. Carter, of Shockoe Hill Cemetery, stated yesterday that the bad condition of the cemetery is chiefly due to the failure of the owners of sections to keep them in proper order. The city cannot keep the walks, etc., clean and also clean up private sections. Many of these have not been attended to for several years. Others have never been visited, as all of the family are dead or moved away, or for some reason entirely neglect them. The city appropriation is fifty dollars per annum.

The city force and some of the almshouse dollars per annum.

The city force and some of the almshouse people keep up the work for the city, but unless the section owners look after their sections, the condition of the cemetery cannot be improved, as the city is not required to keep sections in order.

THE GAME AT ISLAND PARK.

The Old Dominions Defeated the Richmonds Yesterday.

PITCHER MCGUIRE DID GOOD WORK.

The Absence of Luck, Kain and Quarles Made the Teams Uneven-About 300 People Witnessed the Fun.

TESTERDAY after. ternoon two sets of nine men each dwelt in brotherly unity until 5 o'clock, but from that time until the clock in the neighborhood registered twenty minutes to 7 they were foes.

Three hundred people witnessed the battle from the grand stand and benches, and up to the sixth inning the affray was exciting and spirited.

One of the sets were the Richmonds, while the other nine were the Old Dominions, and Island Park was the scene of battle.

The men representing the State proved to be better players. McGuire did the honors of the pitcher's nox and, as usual, executed his "strike out" propensities with a remarkable degree of cuteness and dexterity. Luck stood behind the bat and did good work encased in a wide pair of Hump'y Dumpty pantaloons, and Palmer attempted to knock the cover off the ball by making two base hits, a two-bagger and a home run. Harrison played a beautiful and faultless short-stop and Cullen executed several brilliant stops at first-base. executed several brilliant stops at first-base. DIFFERENT CALIBRE.

The men representing Richmond had not the men representing inclinional had not the same calibre as their opponents. Three of their team were absent. Kain, their excellent short-ston, was suffering from a severe bruise on the hand, Quarles was in Petersburg and Luck was catching for the Old Dominions. Matters were even made worse when it ions. Matters were even made worse when it was announced that Enright could not pitch and that Dar v whild have to occupy the box. These absentees was the reason for the losing of the game. With them the club would have been strong and in every way able to cope with their opponents. As it was, Darby was not in good form and pitched wild and slow. Thirteen men made hits from him, and his slow playing frequently but his team in jeopardy. He was "caught" exceedingly well by Foster, who worked hard to keep the suberge in legitimate distance. Enright did well by Foster, who worked hard to keep the sphere in legitimate distance. Enright did well as short-stop and Leftwich played a good game as second baseman.

When the game commenced the outlook was promising, though to a careful observer, it was evident that the Old Dominions.

would triumph. The Richmonds went to the bat first, and Foster fanued the air. Leftwich followed, and reached first on an error, and Euright sent a fly to the pitcher, who threw Leitwich out at second.

Palmer began his team's work by sending a driver to the first. Harrison struck out. Mc-Mann made a hit and scored. Luck made a hit McGuire received his base on balls and was left at first and Cullen struck out. WENT OUT.
